

Israel Recruits Palestinian Teenagers

Professor Sattar Kassem

25/May/2005

Capturing Palestinian youngsters while carrying explosives on Israeli check-points, has turned to be a phenomenon. What is noticeable is that the mass media are there on the check-point each a time a Palestinian in captivity.

It is very hard to believe the Israeli story due to the striking dumbness of those alleged freedom fighters. At least, the organizations that Israel accuses of responsibility should have learned from their repeated failures.

Over the years, Israel has employed a good number of Palestinian collaborators who are skilled in creating the image of revolutionaries who devote their lives for the liberation of Palestine. These have been used by the Israelis to drag true Palestinians to pre-organized military preparations and to distort the image of Palestinian fighting factions. So many Palestinians have been killed by the Israelis before getting to their targets, and so many times the Palestinians have been the subject of international criticism.

Rational analyses of how teenagers are caught and displayed on TV give strong indications of Israeli indulgence recruiting teenagers. To reveal the truth, independent investigation is certainly helpful.